Tovey

*Pure as the dawn on the brow of thy beauty
Watches thy soul from the Mountains of God
Over the fates of thy children departed
Far from the land where their footsteps have trod
Beacon of hope in they ways dreary lighted
Pride of our hearts that are loyal and true;
From those who adore unto one who adores us,
Mother of Mothers, we sing unto you.— Brodie Payne*

Sharon Raney Pallone

Sharon Raney Pallone is an action-oriented humanitarian who is recognized as one of the outstanding young women in America. As a result of her dynamic leadership, Arkansas is taking definitive action to correct long-standing human needs in education and social services.

The first of her landmark achievements was the organization of two literacy councils—one for the city of Little Rock and the other for the entire State. Both organizations are teaching functionally illiterate adults to read by utilizing the unprecedented effectiveness of the Laubach method.

The University of Arkansas and her native State are honoring her particularly for her pioneering efforts toward prevention of child abuse. She established in Arkansas a volunteer service endeavor which is serving as a national model for solution of child abuse problems. The organization is known as SCAN, an acronym for Suspected Child Abuse and Neglect. Mrs. Pallone founded this organization as a 32-year-old housewife who felt a deep concern for child abuse victims she observed. One of the outstanding features of the program is the psychological therapy provided for the parents in attacking child abuse problems. Under Mrs. Pallone's direction, SCAN has grown from a small nucleus of lay people in 1972 to an agency which now has 13 full-time staff members and 100 trained "lay therapists." In the past four years SCAN has provided services to more than 5,000 children and their families.

Mrs. Pallone received her baccalaureate degree in psychology from the University in 1961, and took graduate work at Mississippi Southern College in psychology and special education.

Throughout her career, she has displayed a dedication to the welfare of others which has earned her the love and respect of people throughout our State and nation.

John Tyler Caldwell

John Tyler Caldwell is an illustrious and highly influential figure in American higher education. He is an outstanding university administrator who has left a major impact on national legislation affecting higher education and the support it received from the government and the people. His achievements in this regard were especially noteworthy during his tenure in high leadership positions for the National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges, an organization he served during a critically important period as president and chairman of its Executive and Legislative Committees. His articulate and dynamic advocacy of a governmental partnership with higher education influenced a number of favorable changes in the shape and function of public support for institutions of higher learning.

Dr. Caldwell served as the chief executive officer for the University of Arkansas from 1952 to 1959 when he resigned to become chancellor of North Carolina State University. He retired as chancellor in 1975 to become president of the Triangle Universities Center for Advanced Studies, Inc., in North Carolina.

At a time when administrative problems in education are of a serious and discouraging nature, Dr. Caldwell exudes a spirit of confidence and optimism. His leadership is dynamic in nature and inspirational in its effect on those associated with him.

Dr. Caldwell takes an active leadership role in developing international programs in higher education. He serves as a member of the Overseas Development Council and previously served as a member of the U.S. National Commission for UNESCO. He was a consultant to the Ford Foundation for education programs in Pakistan and served as Chairman of the NASULGC International Affairs Committee. On the national scene, he served as chairman of the Board of Educational Testing Services in 1966, 1968, and 1973.

Dr. Caldwell holds honorary degrees from five other institutions, including North Carolina State University which registered highly significant progress under his leadership. During his 16 years as chancellor, NSU has conferred two-thirds of the degrees it has awarded during the 85-year history of the institution.

Brooks Hays

A man with a conscience. . . a voice for reason and compassion.

Such accolades were frequently accorded Brooks Hays in his 16 years as a member of the Congress of the United States. History will accord him particularly high honor for his efforts in behalf of the rights of minorities and in securing assistance for those in the lower economic strata of our society.

Early in his Congressional career, Mr. Hays became a recognized authority on the problems of farm tenancy in the South. He regards to this day as one of his greatest achievements the expertise he provided for the drafting of the historically significant Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act to combat rural poverty.

But history will remember him primarily for his impact upon the civil rights movement in this country. He was the principal mediator in the effort to prevent the historic confrontation in Little Rock between the State and federal governments. Later he stood triumphant in defeat when his support of equal rights for all men cost him his seat in Congress but assured him a place of honor in his posterity.

Mr. Hays served in 1955 as a United States Delegate to the United Nations. He served in advisory capacities to two presidents of the United States and was the late President Kennedy's Assistant Secretary of State for Congressional Relations.

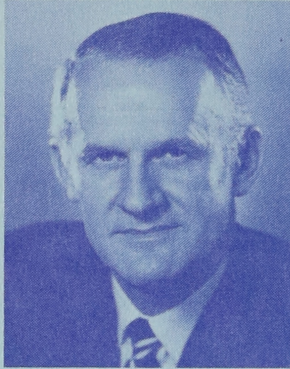

Mr. Hays is a well-known churchman who strongly fits the definition of being an ecumenical man. As a result of his activities in support of diverse religious faiths, he received the national "Churchman of the Year" award from the Religious Heritage of America. As an educator he has served in various capacities on the faculties and staffs of three major universities.

The University of Arkansas deeply appreciates Mr. Hays' action, as one of its alumni, in donating his papers to its Special Collections in the University's library. This gesture was another indication of his steadfast love and loyalty for the University—an institution where he not only received his higher education but where, as a student, he proposed to the former Marian Prather, now Mrs. Hays, on the site of the famous "Spoofers Stone" on the Fayetteville campus, the spot where tradition has seen hundreds of betrothals take place.

Reba Gray Wilcoxon

Dr. Reba Gray Wilcoxon began a career of diversified achievement more than three decades ago, long before our society began to emphasize the rights and abilities of women. In the year 1942, she became the first woman editor of the University of Arkansas Razorback, the institution's yearbook. This position proved to be the springboard for several careers in which she excelled as a journalist, teacher, research scholar, and university administrator. She now serves as Associate to the Chancellor and Lecturer in English at Vanderbilt University, one of the nation's leading private institutions of higher education.

Dr. Wilcoxon's diverse intellectual interests led her to the accumulation of four undergraduate and graduate degrees at three institutions, the University of Arkansas and Yale and Vanderbilt universities.

Prior to her current association with Vanderbilt, Dr. Wilcoxon taught English and philosophy at the University of Tennessee in Nashville. From 1966 to 1969, she served as information officer at the Demonstration and Research Center for Early Education at the Kennedy Center of Peabody College in Nashville, Tennessee. She also has taught English, Journalism and Philosophy at the University of Arkansas and at New Haven State Teachers College in Connecticut.

Dr. Wilcoxon was editor of the Arkansas Alumnus, official publication of the University of Arkansas Alumni Association from 1957 to 1960, and the magazine won a national award for excellence under her stewardship. She also edited syndicated articles and was a member of the board of directors of Editorial Projects for Education, Inc., in Baltimore, Maryland. She is the author of a number of research publications and is widely recognized for her teaching abilities, being nominated for excellence in teaching by students at both Vanderbilt and the University of Tennessee.

Dr. Wilcoxon is the wife of Dr. Hardy C. Wilcoxon of the Peabody College faculty, and their son, Hardy, Jr., is a graduate student at Yale University.

William H. Bowen

The name of William H. Bowen is synonymous with dynamic and versatile leadership in the educational and economic development of Arkansas.

Mr. Bowen is the chief executive officer of one of the State's major financial institutions, and he devotes a large proportion of his time and effort to the advancement of the State's educational and cultural activities. He is a man of tireless energy and magnetic personality. He approaches every project with such un-flagging optimism and enthusiasm that his associates describe him as a leader in whose lexicon the word "Can't" has never appeared. The results of his effective initiative and enterprise are sharply visible in the progress of the State's institutions of higher education. The Development Program of the University of Arkansas is one of the activities which bears the imprint of his persuasive and effective leadership. A direct result is the program's contributions toward scholarships, endowed chairs for attracting distinguished faculty, and other urgent needs of the institution. Mr. Bowen also serves as a member of the Board of Visitors of the University of Arkansas at Little Rock and as secretary and member of the Board of Trustees of Philander Smith College.

In banking and finance activities, Mr. Bowen has served on the State government relations committee of the Arkansas Bankers Association, on the taxation committee of the American Bankers Association, and the taxation committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

His leadership in State economic development includes his service on the Arkansas Industrial Development Commission. As an attorney, Mr. Bowen has been recognized with the Citizen Lawyer Award of the Arkansas Bar Association and the Arkansas Bar Foundation. His cultural and civic activities include service as president of the Arkansas Art Center, chairman of the Radio Free Europe Fund, president of the Urban Progress Association, and chairman of the Pulaski County United Fund. In 1963 he was elected Arkansas Man of the Year in a poll conducted by the Arkansas Democrat.

John W. White
(Posthumous Citation)

The life of John W. White typified the great agricultural traditions of Arkansas. To him, as to few other men, our State is indebted for the rapid and diversified development of its agricultural economy.

The death of Dr. White on March 13, 1976, ended 39 years of his service to the University of Arkansas, including 16 years as its Vice President for Agriculture. In this position, he guided the University's agricultural education, research and extension programs through their most significant period of growth and development. It was under his leadership that all of these programs were coordinated with the establishment of a Division of Agriculture which has effectively integrated these three agricultural missions of the University.

Dr. White's leadership was characterized by a quiet but firm determination to achieve objectives that were carefully defined and which held practical value to the University and the State. He was able to unify many diverse group and interests in the pursuit of goals common to all.

Dr. White started his work for the University in 1935 as field agent for the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology. During the next eight years he served in various positions for the Agricultural Experiment Station and the Extension Service while at the same time completing his work for his masters and doctoral degrees from the University of Minnesota. In 1944, he was appointed Assistant Director of the Rice Branch Experiment Station at Stuttgart. Four years later he returned to the Fayetteville campus to become the head of the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology. He was named associate director of the Experiment Station in 1953, a position he held until he was appointed to the vice presidency.

Dr. White was named "Man of the Year in Arkansas Agriculture" in 1957 by the Progressive Farmer magazine, and in the same year he received the Distinguished Four-H Alumni award. He was a former member of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, being appointed to that position by former President Eisenhower.
